Diet and Behavior: A Multidisciplinary Evaluation A Nutrition Reviews Special Issue

Very shortly, Nutrition Reviews—the most respected interpretive review journal in its field—will release an ambitious supplement. Diet and Behavior: A Multidisciplinary Evaluation will offer over 300 pages covering the proceedings of a November, 1984 symposium cosponsored by International Life Sciences Institute-Nutrition Foundation and the American Medical Association.

Reports by 34 leading scientists illuminate the following topics:

- the effects of food and nutrients on brain function;
- the effects of food and nutrients on behavior, including hyperactivity, criminal behavior, sleep and mood;
- strategies for improving research on diet and behavior.

Supplement editors are G. Harvey Anderson, PhD, University of Toronto; Walter M. Lovenberg, PhD, National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute; Harold Lubin, MD, American Medical Association; Diane Morris, PhD, RD, American Medical Association; and Robert E. Olson, MD, PhD, State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Every current Nutrition Reviews subscriber will automatically receive a copy of Diet and Behavior. Individual nonsubscribers can purchase a copy of the supplement for $12; institutions, $15.

If you're a nonsubscriber, use the form to order your copy of Diet and Behavior. Better yet, subscribe to Nutrition Reviews and receive this landmark supplement as a subscription benefit.
