

The American Society for Nutrition, Inc
The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition
Authors' Agreement

1. This publishing agreement ("Agreement") is between the undersigned author ("Author") and The American Society for Nutrition, Inc, a nonprofit corporation with offices at 9650 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, Maryland 20814-3998 USA ("ASN"), regarding publication of the manuscript identified below (the "Article") in The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition (AJCN). This Agreement is effective on the date last signed.

Article Title: _____

2. The Author represents and warrants that to the best of his or her knowledge (a) the scientific findings described in the Article are original and do not infringe on the intellectual property rights of any third party; (b) the Article and its scientific findings have not been previously published nor submitted for publication elsewhere except in abstract form, and there is no offer or agreement for publication pending; (c) the Article and this Agreement identify all co-authors who have substantially contributed to the concept, data collection and analysis, or preparation of the manuscript and therefore who may have intellectual property claims to the content, and do not include as an author anyone who does not have an intellectual property claim, and each Author's contribution to this work has been identified in the Acknowledgments section of the Article; (d) publication of the Article will not violate the terms of any funding agreement, employment agreement, or other contractual arrangement, or the privacy rights of the authors; (e) the Author has identified in a footnote to the title all sources of funding relating to the research represented in the Article; (f) the Author has no undisclosed financial or personal interest in any company or organization connected in any way with the research represented in the Article, including serving as an expert witness or public advocate, grantee, shareholder, option holder, advisor, consultant, employee, or officer, and that any such real or potential conflict of financial or personal interest is disclosed in the Acknowledgments section of the article; (g) the publication of this Article does not require the permission of any other person; (h) the Author has the legal power to enter into this Agreement and grant the rights set forth below (for US government authors, the provision applies only to the extent to which the copyright is transferable); (i) the facts, conclusions, and opinions stated in the Article represent the Author's research, conclusions, and opinions and are believed to be substantiated, accurate, valid, and reliable; (j) the Author has reviewed and approved for publication the version of the Article submitted to the AJCN for publication, and the Author will review for accuracy the final version before publication.

3. The author, in consideration of the acceptance of the above Article for publication, does hereby assign and transfer to the ASN all of the rights, title, and interest in and to the copyright of the above titled Article in its current form, including online supporting material (data supplements) submitted with the Article, and in any form subsequently revised for publication and/or electronic dissemination. For US Government authors, the provision applies only to the extent that copyright is transferable. This includes the display of the accepted Article and online supporting material in electronic form on the internet before and/or after print publication.

4. Authors of articles in The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition retain the right to use the article or any part thereof free of charge in a printed compilation of works of their own, such as collected writings, theses or lecture notes; to reuse original figures and tables in future works; to present data from their own papers at a meeting or conference; to include their article in their thesis or dissertation.

5. This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties with respect to the stated subject matter and can be modified only by a signed, written agreement. This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Maryland and the US copyright laws. This Agreement is binding upon the Author's heirs and personal representatives. If any term of this Agreement shall be found invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction, such provision shall be enforced to the fullest extent that it is valid and enforceable under applicable law, and all other provisions of this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect.

6. The following applies if your manuscript was supported by a National Institutes of Health (NIH) research grant. The principal investigators (PIs) of NIH-funded research grants that support work published in peer-reviewed journals are required to comply with a new NIH policy to deposit any accepted manuscripts on the PubMed Central website. Authors whose papers are funded by NIH grants will be invoiced to have their papers deposited into the PubMed repository by ASN upon publication ($45 for non-members, $20 for ASN members). The AJCN policy is to make articles free online on our website as well as in the NIH repository 12 months after publication. This will satisfy both the AJCN and NIH policies

7. Authors of accepted original research manuscripts can choose to pay a free access fee to allow their articles to become freely accessible on the journal website immediately upon publication. The free access fee is $3000 per article and is charged in addition to other author charges (page charges, color reproduction charges, author alteration charges, and charges for reprint orders). For authors who elect not to pay the free access fee, articles will remain under access control for the first 12 months after publication.

Upon acceptance of an article, authors interested in the free access publication option will be instructed to download the Free Access Choice Form (<http://www.nutrition.org/media/publications/guidelines-and-policies/free-access-publication-option/Free-Access-Choice-Form.pdf>) to provide article and billing information. For authors who elect to pay the free access fee, the article will be made freely accessible immediately upon publication. The free access fee, along with the remainder of the author fees (page charges, color charges, and cost of reprints), will be billed after publication.

Authors who receive Wellcome Trust, Medical Research Council (MRC), or Howard Hughes Medical Institute (HHMI) funding can comply with the Wellcome Trust, MRC, and HHMI open access publishing requirements by selecting the American Society for Nutrition free access publishing option. The free access form includes a section in which authors can provide information on their Wellcome Trust, MRC, or HHMI grant. The American Society for Nutrition will deposit high resolution files and the final version of the article in PubMedCentral on behalf of Wellcome Trust and MRC authors who pay the free access fee and will authorize public posting on PubMedCentral and PubMedCentral mirror sites immediately.

8. All authors understand that material submitted to The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition is embargoed until the article appears online, either as in press (Articles in Press) or as a final version. For information on when the article will appear online, please contact the ASN Publications Department by e-mailing publications@nutrition.org. Embargoed information is not to be made public in any format, including print, television, radio, or via the Internet, before the embargo date. ASN reserves the right to halt the consideration or publication of a paper if this condition is broken.
